Web-Based System and Method

Abstract

A system and method for converting/generating web application programs is 5 disclosed so that the system user or developer may perform substantially all activities with respect to a web application at the web browser level rather that at the web server or application server level to effect changes in the web application operation.